

Kimberly Weinrick
LPCC Board Secretary

As the Lake Placid Curling Club Board Secretary, Kim completely respects the art of curling, though she wishes it wasn't such a humbling sport — or at least that she was better at it.

In her day job, Kim helps to build Public Affairs engagement for Wall Street firms, most recently Oppenheimer Funds, where she served as the firm's spokesperson and led its community involvement. She moved to Saranac Lake from Manhattan, as her husband Brian Weinrick was named lead scientist for TB research at the Trudeau Institute. They have two young sons who adore the Adirondacks, and Kim is thoroughly enjoying the mix of lake life and city work.

Kim received a BA from Florida State University and attended the University of Bonn for Graduate Studies on The Economic Reunification of Germany as well as Game Theory. Kim is actively involved in the Financial Women's Association and a member of the Museum of American Finance's Communications Advisory Council. Kim is a member of Saranac Lake Rotary Club, co-chair of the Saranac Lake Re-entry Program and actively involved in Petrova Parents' Club.
